Case

Context & Background

Nubank is undergoing a significant growth cycle, expanding internationally beyond Latin America, launching new verticals, and scaling its global operating model. As the company scales, maintaining operational efficiency, disciplined cost structures, and cohesive C-suite alignment becomes critical.

As Chief of Staff to the CFO & Corporate Governance Leader, you act as the strategic engine for the corporate agenda and the connective tissue between financial strategy and corporate governance. You are tasked with bringing day-to-day corporate planning in-house, streamlining Board governance, and leading high-stakes strategic initiatives.

The Business Challenge

Imagine you are 60 days into your role at Nu. You are faced with three simultaneous executive challenges that require your immediate intervention:

Pillar 1: In-Housing Global Corporate Planning & Budget Trade-offs

Nu is transitioning from decentralized planning to a centralized, in-house global corporate planning function. During the annual budget cycle, the Business Unit Leaders (GMs) request a combined $60M budget increase to accelerate international expansion and vertical growth. However, to meet public market expectations and margin discipline, the CFO requires cost growth to stay capped at $25M across all central and regional operations.

- Challenge: How do you design an in-house global corporate planning and prioritization framework that drives cost control without stifling business agility or creating friction with senior GMs?

Pillar 2: C-Suite Alignment & Board Governance Rhythm

The quarterly Board of Directors meeting is approaching in 4 weeks. Key topics include international capital allocation and statutory governance across expanding legal entities. Two key MTeam members hold opposing views on capital prioritization, and Board materials are currently lagging behind schedule.

- Challenge: Outline your strategy to align the C-suite behind a single corporate agenda, manage executive friction, and structure a seamless Board management rhythm.

Pillar 3: High-Visibility Special Project Negotiation

The CEO and CFO have tasked you with independently leading a sensitive special project: establishing a new corporate headquarters and negotiating local regulatory and campus infrastructure agreements. This involves cross-functional legal, tax, compliance, and statutory officer requirements across multiple jurisdictions.

- Challenge: How do you approach the governance, cross-functional execution, and risk management of this project while acting as an interim leader across non-finance verticals?

Key Deliverables for Your Presentation

1. Corporate Planning Framework & Prioritization Engine: Present a concrete framework for in-housing corporate planning, capacity allocation, and managing the $35M budget gap between GM growth requests and CFO cost targets.
2. Stakeholder Alignment & Governance Strategy: Walk us through how you handle executive pushback from a senior GM, gain buy-in without direct line authority, and structure pre-Board alignment routines.
3. Special Project Execution Roadmap: Detail your governance approach for the regional hub/campus negotiation, highlighting key milestone gates, statutory officer implications, and cross-functional leadership.
4. Leadership Style & Operating Philosophy: Briefly share how you balance high-level strategic influence with hands-on technical FP&A/governance rigor in a fast-paced, matrixed executive culture.
